

Germs Don't Cause Disease!!

By Dr. Gary Tunsky

Enlightened understanding demonstrates that germs are not the cause of disease any more than flies, maggots, and rats cause garbage or cockroaches and ants cause dirty dishes in the sink. Flies, maggots and rats do not cause garbage, they feed on it. These scavengers, who seek their own habitat, show up as an aftermath as a result of the garbage.

That's why I refer to Louis Pasteur's Germ Theory of Disease" as the "Rat Theory of Garbage". If germs cause disease, then rats must cause garbage. Show me a building full of rats, and I'll show you a building that's full of garbage with sanitation problems. Show me a person who has accumulated waste matter in organs tissues and cells, low oxygen levels, weakened immunity, nutritional deficiencies, and an acidic pH environment, and I will show you cancer, bacterial, viral, fungal, and parasitic infections in weak areas of the body.

Many well-respected, cellular terrain specialists in the fields of cell physiology, microbiology, disease pathology and molecular biology, have all proven, beyond a shadow of a doubt many decades ago, that germs don't cause disease. They seek their natural habitat, they are opportunistic scavengers and they develop in response to the inner condition of the cellular environment. So why would mainstream science continue their research in the wrong direction based upon Pasteur's Germ Theory of Disease, when it has long been proven that germs and bacteria are secondary, not primary causes of disease?

It's because around it exists a colossal infrastructure of commercial interests that supports a trillion dollar industry of increased sales for antibiotics, antifungals and antivirals, based solely upon this falsehood. Until medical science comes to grips with this reality, they will be chasing their tails around in the dark for another hundred years. The entire medical establishment has built their house of cards on Pasteur's false doctrine. It's ironic and indeed pathetic that human beings, the highest form of intelligence on this planet, have managed to build the vast pharmaceutical industry on the central purpose of poisoning and attacking the lowest forms of life on the planet – GERMS!
